Rev. N. R. Pittman officiating.

Miss Stickley is a daughter of Mrs.

The groom is a prominent young busi-ness man of his home city and is to be congratulated on his selection of a life

Yesterday afternoon from 2 till Miss Margaret Abby Pickett gave her young girl friends, twelve in number, a most beautiful luncheon. The old mansion was in ante-wedding garb to make fitting a bower in which the accomplished and highly-favored daughter might re-ceive, dispense and bid farewell. The -myriad lights, rich damask, beautiful of one so great a part of that charming circle girlhood brings so soon being re moved to the state of wifehood. The menu was elegant and delicious and served in courses consumed the time while together. Miss Pickett was attired in an artistic gown of great beauty, and with a great bunch of carnations as and with a great bunch of carnations as a corsage bouquet at times it was hard to-tell if the carnations round her cheeks were the pink which comes only of true happiness, of which all present wished that this was but the beginning.

The wedding of Mr. Barbour and Miss Pickett will be solemnized at 2:30 this afteraoon, Church of the Nativity, Rev. D. D. Chapin officiating. The bridal party will be composed of the following friends: Bride's Maid of Honor, Miss party will be composed at the following friends: Bride's Maid of Honor, Miss Rosa Pickett, sister of bride; Mr. Andrew M. THE glories of a remnited country are dawning at last. The Chicago Times-Herald, referring to the return of the Confederate battleflags, says:

the Confederate battledage, says:

"This is the time to wipe out the last vestige of sectional animosties engendered a third of a century ago. There is neither patriotism nor good common sense in antagonizing any effort which makes for National unity and National harmony and National brotherhood. Let us make this matter unanimous."

The Nashville American, commenting on this expression, happily says:

"Very forcefully said. The South retains no vestige of an unkind feeling toward the North."

HENRY CLEWS, the able financier, ays the present position of finance in this country is a most extraordinary one. In the midst of war, the condi tion of the foreign exchanges is such as to place the money centers of Europe virtually at our mercy. We are per mitting balances due to this country, to the amount of probably close upon $100,000,000, to remain on temporar loan, and yet are buying extraordinarily large amounts of our securities held in England, Germany and Holland Within a year, we have drawn from Europe fully $100,000,000 of gold and are in a position to draw about an equal amount more, if our convenience should so require. Our stock of the yellow metal has reached the highest total in our experience and for the first time exceeds the holdings of any other Nation. In the face of a heavy mili tary taxation and in prospect of large vernment borrowings, Wall street is buoyant and the prices of securities are steadily advancing. Such a con currence of conditions indicative of financial strength in the presence of an important war, has hitherto hardly ever befallen a Nation.
